Medical science is an independent branch of medicine. According to the legal regulation of the Russian Federation the appropriate medical director is a senior specialist of medicine with a scientific training. The work experience of the medical director of a regional hospital, the ability to use the information resources of a specialized library, a profound knowledge of the current situation in the organization of the hospital and a team of people with a variety of professional experience are the basic prerequisites for the successful medical education of the medical director. The medical director who at the same time is a scientist, a researcher, a specialist in the area of his work has a lot to offer the hospital. The scientific education of the medical director is based on a regular process of education, study, research, and creativity, which must be carried out by the training division, and also by the director and his team. The full success of the process requires a proper selection of the students, training courses, practical experience of the study of scientific publications, on-the-job education, student internship and qualification exams. The process of education of the medical director is an important goal of the teaching, research, and educational process in the hospital. Therefore, it is necessary to start preparing the work of the medical director from a young age.EcoLogia EcoLogia is an Indian non-governmental organization (NGO) working for sustainable environmental development. 82157476af
