To start, I'm first going to say that this DLC is NOT as good as the last one. The tracks in that were absolutely amazing, as was the music. The tracks in this one are OK, but not amazing, and compared to the last ones are a bit too easy. I did have fun with them though, and for the lower price I guess they are OK.

I hope they come out with more DLC tracks in the future, and I would suggest anyone who is a big fan of the game pick it up, although if you are only getting one DLC pack you should get the other one.. This is an excellent DLC focusing on speed through simpler tracks. Great fun for new players and veteran perfectionist time trialers. My favorite environment, not the most interesting map design, but each course is solid. Pretty good music.. Nauseating level design and some very frustrating jumps spoil what is a beautiful and trippy environment to race in. Avoid this DLC and go for the Neptune pack instead.. The V.E.R.T.E.X. DLC is a nice little addition to the already diverse types of tracks in Redout. The new tracks are fun and not too difficult. However, the music that comes along with the DLC feels somewhat underwhelming compared to the other music in Redout (i.e. volcano, Alaska).

but overall I would recommend this DLC to anybody that already enjoys redout.. Great tracks and I love the music. Worth every penny!. Hidden shortcut, that really put the tracks into something...

oh yeah, dont forget to "Return Null" XD. Simple fast tracks. Deciding that patching out gravity and air resistance wasn't enough, the devs have now implemented a safe virtual reality which allows us to go faster than ever before without the risk of getting lost in space and re-enacting the last few minutes of Stanley Kubrick's 2001: A Space Odyssey.

Certified fast, permanently.. I was exited to try out these tracks on viewing the screenshots, but having seen them in-game, I've gotta say I'm disappointed. The coloured blocks appear to have been placed without much thought to form and visual function... too messy. A great game, but if you're thinking of purchasing just one or two DLCs, I'd say go for the other packs first.

I'll be honest: this is not as good as Europa and Neptune. However, it appears that this is "intentionnal": simpler tracks with minimalistic sceneries, which made for hardcore time hunting. And since it's only 4/5 euros, it's definitely worth it.. Another fabulous DLC addition to Redout! These tracks are set in an abstract, psychedelic, almost dream-like simulation which provides a visual flavor quite unique from the rest of the game. The two new musical tracks provide a nice ambience as well, maintaining the general techno V drum-and-bass flavor of the soundtrack while adding in some synthesized beeps and buzzes to bring the computer-themed environment to life.

As far as the tracks themselves- for those players who prefer the simpler, more curvy layouts of locations like Cairo and Alaska, this DLC is right up your alley. Even if you do prefer those really complex behemoths of Neptune and Europa like I do, these tracks provide a nice contrast and are a much-welcomed addition to an already stellar title.. The V.E.R.T.E.X. Pack has similar track layouts as Cairo. The tracks are easy. The visuals consist of vertices and the soundtrack is adequate.

The price matches the minimalistic visual design. I recommend watching a gameplay video of a boss mode race, trough this location, to decide, on the purchase of this DLC. I recommend this DLC for people who want to race on simple tracks. I don't recommend this for people who want detailed visuals.. I must admit I don't like the abstract style here. Everything is an abstract colorful shape and it makes all the tracks look the same.

Part of what I enjoyed about Redout was the scenery and seeing a bit of machinery or a building whiz past you at 1000kmh gave the game a great sense of scale & speed. Without the concept of Vertex being a real place, it feels something is missing and detracts from the scale.

I found the music middling and prefer the other zone's stronger beats.

There's no desire to replay any of the Vertex tracks for me, I'd much rather play one of the previous zones which all have better music, layout & style.. These tracks are amazing colorful fun, they are more straight foward than the rest of the DLCs and reaching high speeds on them turns your television into a machine desined to kill people with epilepsy.. Nice playgrounds and competitive environments to train your skills. The Vertex tracks are rather more fun and less teeth-clenching than most, which is certainly not a bad thing! These tracks have more of a traditional, F-Zero vibe. Fleshing out the early Career with some easier events that are Not Alaska is very welcome. Funky music and highly recommended!. Not the most challenging tracks, but this works in the DLC's favor. When you skip the hairpin turns of Europa in favor of long straights and slight chicanes, you can achieve a very satisfyingly break-neck speed throughout most of a course. Fortunately, most courses in the DLC are like this. I've found myself returning to these tracks again and again just to test my time trial skills. Highly recommended, even more than the Neptune DLC.

Oh, and the music kicks\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665
