CERULEAN SALVE ROOT

A root-type ingredient that has a green colour mixed in with a light yellow tinge. The root grows a circular disk with a bright blue appearance which forms a thin layer of an unknown liquid paste with the same colour. Though it is unknown what this paste is, it is known to remove any physical abnormalities such as scars and other permanent markings. It essentially "smudges" the skin to cover up said markings. Although this seems to be a very useful ingredient, there is a downside. The downside being that upon smearing this paste, the user will feel intense itchiness in the applied area. This usually lasts for 20-30 minutes. Grows in dark locations. Grows in singles.

CRIMSON SHIFT LEAF

A leaf-type ingredient with a red fangesque appearance. This ingredient is nothing special during its growth, however it becomes useful when it begins to fall. When that does happen, the leaf loses its red hue and instead receives a blue one. The colour change indicates that the ingredient is ready to be used in concoctions where it will generate a bluish foam. Said foam prevents any contaminants from entering the concoction which is undeniably useful, especially in alchemy. Grows around mountainous vegetation where there is plenty of light and grows in groups.

CRONE'S GAMBLE ROOT

A root-type ingredient with a solid black hue on both the roots and the outgrowth. The outgrowth, that is visible above the ground, is a sphere covered in small blunt spikes. When the entire ingredient is removed from the ground and placed in a watery environment, the root releases an odourless and transparent aura. This aura is known for being capable of giving good luck or bad luck to people in range. Of course this could be a lie that merchant's came up with to maximise their profits but you never know. Grows in dark locations. Grows in groups.
